

Orange library starts month of readings

Orange Public Library will host daily programs as part of the 23rd national African American Read-In program.

In a statement, library officials said plan to have works by black authors and poets read aloud, by persons of any race or age, at least one hour for each day the library is open.

Readings are scheduled to begin Wednesday at 4 p.m. Special programs have been planned on Saturdays as well as during the winter school recess.

The library is located at Main Street and South Essex Avenue. Contact the library at 973-673-0153 for information.
